

ESF – Pre status and online map review – TMS replacement

Recently an application Bulletin regarding the Tenure Mapping Service (TMS) was sent out indicating that this service will be shut down in the near future. This application allowed those making ESF submissions to upload their submission onto a graphical map and run a map report on the features to identify potential conflicts.

Using TMS through the ESF site

Most, if not all, of the functionality of TMS is now available within ESF. When a submission is made, ESF will indicate whether it has passed spatial and attribute validation. If validated the submitter can choose to finalize submission, view map or cancel submission (see screen shot below). Within the view map option the submitter can upload the features onto a graphical map, and add additional layers to visually review the submission. The submitter can also run a map report that will list potential conflicts. It is recommended that all harvest submission are checked in this manner prior to final submission.

The screenshot shows a Microsoft Internet Explorer browser window displaying the ESF submission confirmation page. The browser title is "Government of British Columbia - Microsoft Internet Explorer provided by Shared Services BC". The address bar shows the URL: <http://extranet7.for.gov.bc.ca/esf/submissionUpload.do>. The page content includes the British Columbia logo, navigation links, and a confirmation message: "Electronic Submission - Confirm Submission". The submission details are as follows:
